

Trooper Jason Buratzuk was working for an airline in Providence, Rhode Island when the events of September 11, 2001 dramatically altered his life's direction. Soon after, he joined the Air Force and later served at Nellis Air Force Base. In 2007, Buratzuk graduated from the Nevada Department of Public Safety Police Academy and has served our local community as a Trooper ever since, initially as a first responder and now as a Public Information Officer. He is responsible for media relations, community engagement and traffic safety education. He is a member of multiple traffic safety board and programs and has a passion for with an emphasis on occupant restraints.
